Panchabhoota

Astra & Mantra Card Deck

A print-and-play deck for the offline / family board-game version, transcribed from the Panchabhoota Codex Master Game Design Specification v1.0.

What's inside

- 28 Astra cards — 5 each of Agneyastra, Varunastra, Vayavyastra, Parvathastra, Indrastra, plus 1 each of the three Super Astras (Brahmastra, Pashupatastra, Narayanastra).
- 24 Mantra cards — Dhanavrishti ×3, Sampatti ×2, Parivartana ×2, Bhiksha ×3, Jeeva-Srishti ×3, Vayu-Siddhi ×3, Nirman ×2, Raksha ×4, Maha-Raksha ×2.
- One shared card back per deck — a dark Astra design and a separate Mantra design — so the two piles stay easy to tell apart face-down at the table.

How to print

- Print at 100% scale ("Actual size" / "No scaling") on US Letter paper.
- Cardstock (200–300 gsm) is recommended so cards shuffle and hold up to handling.
- Each deck's front pages are followed by matching back pages. If your printer supports double-sided printing (flip on long edge), print each deck's pages together and it will align automatically. Otherwise print all front pages, then feed the stack back through for the back pages — the back design is identical on every card in a deck, so exact registration doesn't matter.
- Cut along the dashed grey guide lines. A ruler + craft knife gives the cleanest edges; scissors work fine too.

Table setup

- Keep the Astra deck and Mantra deck as two separate face-down piles all game — they are never shuffled together.
- A player needs a Fort to buy an Astra, and a Temple to buy a Mantra. A newly purchased card can't be played until your next turn.
- Raksha and Maha-Raksha are the only cards played out of turn — as an instant response when an Astra targets you.
- Super Astras (black/gold cards) can only be stopped by Maha-Raksha; normal Astras counter in a cycle: Agneyastra → Varunastra → Vayavyastra → Parvathastra → Indrastra → back to Agneyastra.

Element colour-coding on the Astra cards (fire / water / air / earth / akasha) is a visual aid for this print deck and is not a rule change from the digital prototype.
